Is Rothko's work any good?

Well he was an artist...

He was also an Art teacher

Kindergarten to grade 8

In the 1930s in Brooklyn

Lesson #1

Show your students that art is a universal form of expression, as elemental as speaking or singing

- Mark Rothko, Artist, Art educator 1930s

Lesson #2

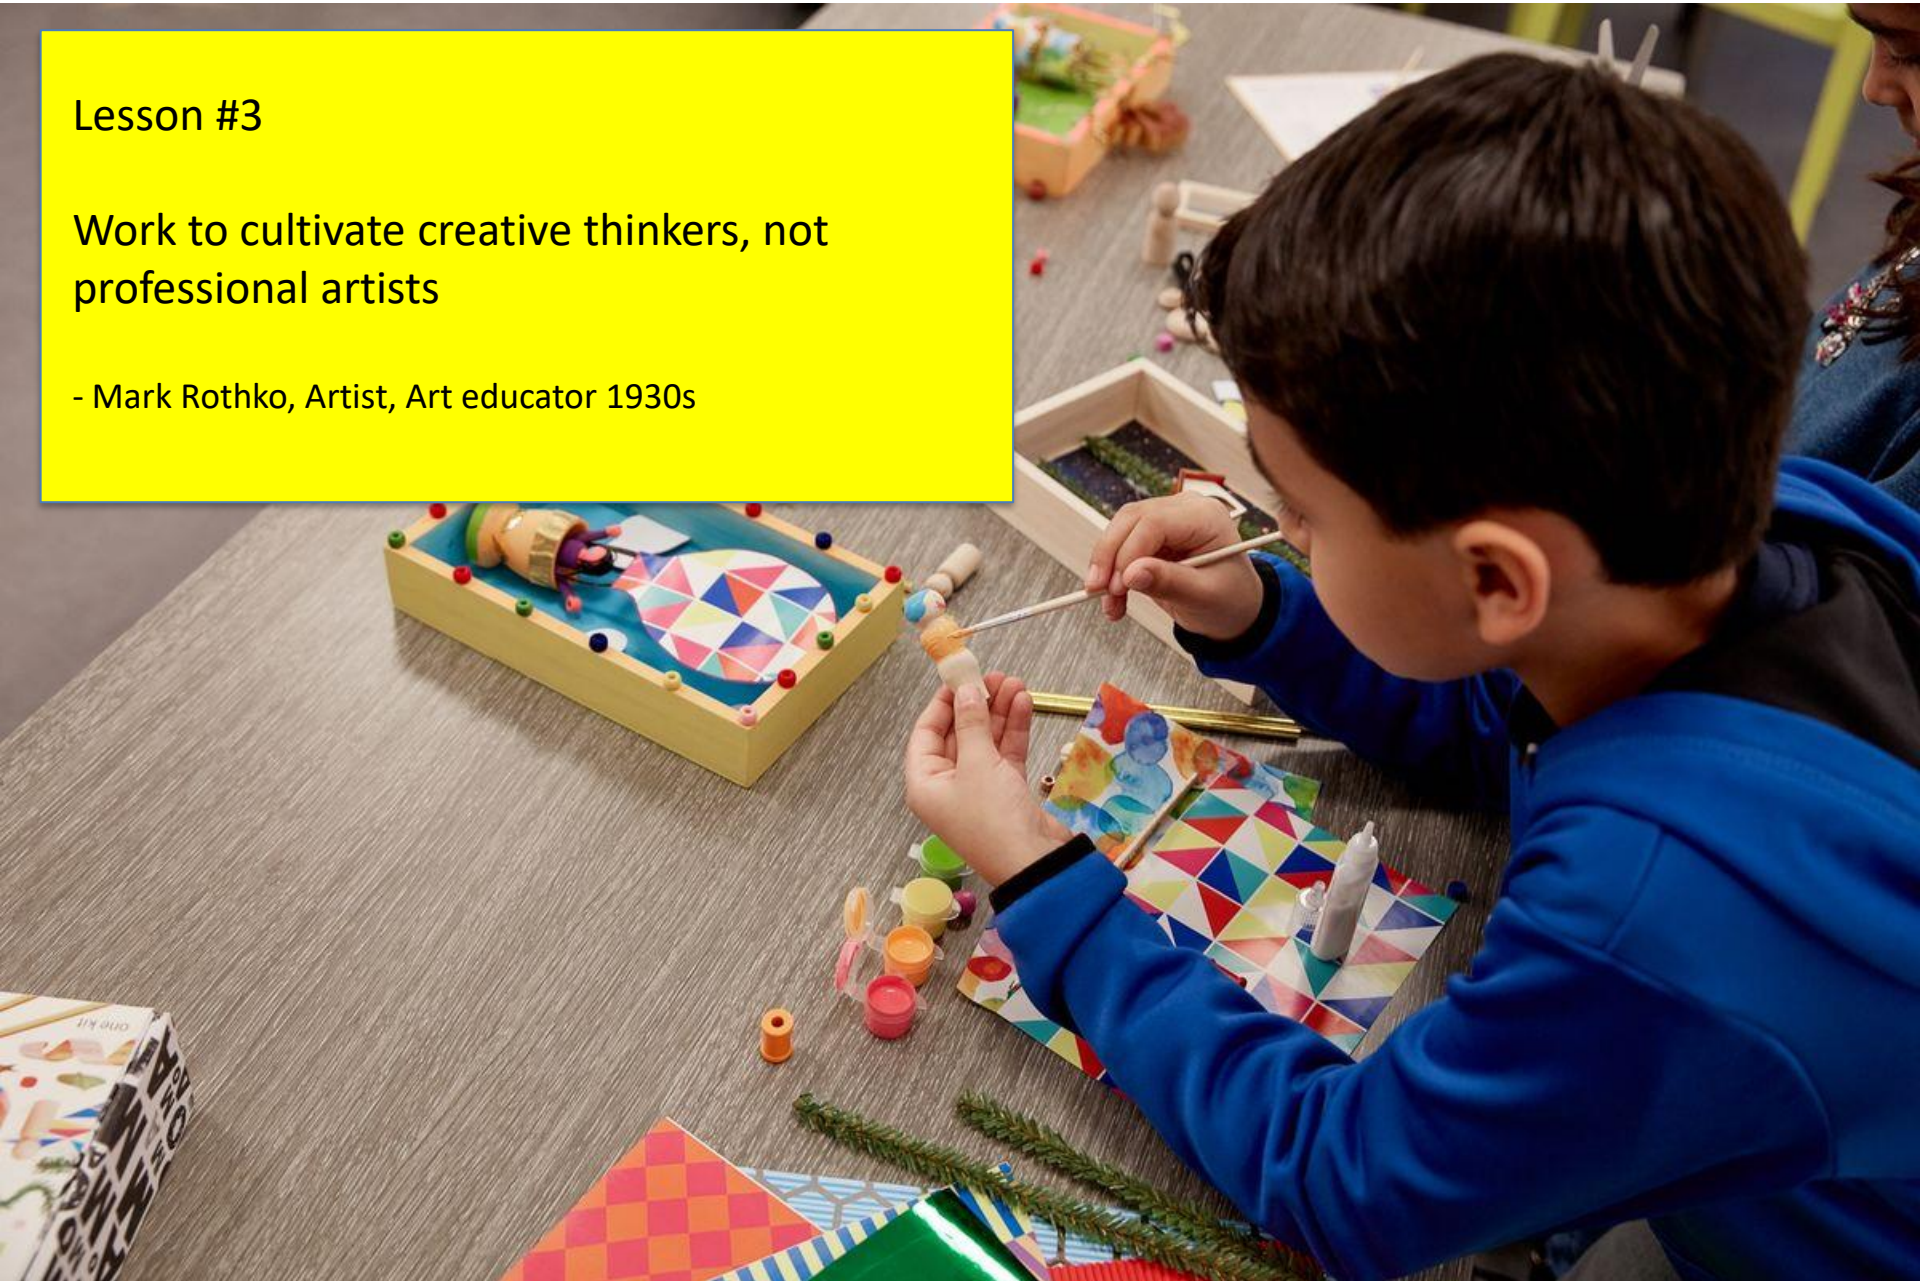

Stage exhibitions of your students' works to encourage their self-confidence

- Mark Rothko, Artist, Art educator 1930s

Lesson #3

Work to cultivate creative thinkers, not professional artists

- Mark Rothko, Artist, Art educator 1930s

Children are naturally creative. It is our job to give them the freedom, materials & space to let their creativity blossom to its full potential.

JASMINI MODY
Mumbai
Lilavatibai Podar School

“

I love teaching art because learning happens both ways between the student and teacher! Every class is a new, joyful experience as students learn how to create, question and empathize. It is a privilege to teach this universal language that reflects life itself.

I love teaching art because...

“

Art plays a very important role in education and the personal development of a child's personality. When children create Art, they become like themselves instead of more like everyone else.

MANISHA MOHNANI
BANGALORE

National Public School, Whitefield

It allows me to become a child with them and reminisce the good ol' days with my students who get to be multiple versions of themselves while searching for their inner voice through art.

I recall when I had 6 art periods in a day and I was absent because I was unwell so the next day I got all their Math and English Literature classes to teach them art. This is the excitement I share with my students.

Niharika Gupta
Mumbai

“

My aspiration as Art teacher: to expose children, through Art, to the Diversity of conception - as wealth - of the World. This, in order to contribute to a better understanding of the world around them

A Toolkit for Art Educators to thrive in the Online Learning World

Our Speakers today –

Dr.Nigel Meager and Elise Gallinot Goldman

Join us from Spain and New Orleans to share their experience with teaching art in the “new normal”

In fact their ideas are fundamental and work across online and offline

We are honoured to hear from them (and Rothko)
